

Steelers Buried Argos - Way Down Deep But Scullers Lucky Tobin Rote's Knee Was Only Bruised

By JIM HUNT Sport Writer, Toronto Star • August 4, 1960

Tom Tracy on 41 yard touchdown run

Argos' honeymoon with the NFL is over and, like all mismatches, the break-up was a sad thing to watch.

Some 23,570 paid their money (some $90,000 of it) at the CNE last night to see Argos embarrassed and humiliated, 43-16, by the Pittsburgh Steelers, a team just too powerful for the double blue to play. And the score flattered the local heroes.

Argo managing-director Lew Hayman, looking at the gate, still is not convinced a NFL team and his club are not a good match. But unless Toronto fans are a lot dumber than this department thinks, they will not turn out another year to see Argos and an NFL team play.

It is bad for Argos, something that was quite evident from the hangdog expression in the dressing room. These players didn't quit. But like a preliminary fighter put in with the heavyweight champion, they just didn't have the tools for the job. And it is bad for Canadian football, a game that is trying to convince the public it is big league and charges prices to match.

The debacle could have been worse. Midway through the second quarter, Tobin Rote limped off the field after his knee collided with Danny Nykoluk's helmet. For a few paralyzing moments, it appeared another Argo season was over before it had really started. But examination showed Tobin only suffered a bruised knee and could have returned to action if it had been a league rather than an exhibition game. The only injury of note was a concussion suffered by Cleve Wester who was taken to hospital for examination. This was better than last year against the Cardinals when three first line players were seriously injured.

For football fans who don't mind seeing the local heroes taken apart, there were some interesting moments last night. Most of them were provided by Bobby Layne, the Steeler quarterback who picked the Argo pass defence apart at will.

The Argo cause wasn't helped by the fact Rote was having a poor night, and so were his receivers, before his injury. But the opening minutes of the game gave a tip as to the way this game was going. Argos marched to the Pittsburgh 10-yard line in their only real good drive of the half. Stalled, rookie Bill Mitchell kicked a field goal. Three plays later at 9:23 to play in the first quarter, Layne connected with Preston Carpenter on a 59-yard TD pass and the parade had started.

Tom Tracy raced around end 41-yards. Layne passed 40 yard to Buddy Dial and it was 20-3 with only 15 minutes played. At this point, the Argos seemed to lose their poise and frustration set in. The evidence was an onside kick that the Scullers tried on four consecutive third down situations.

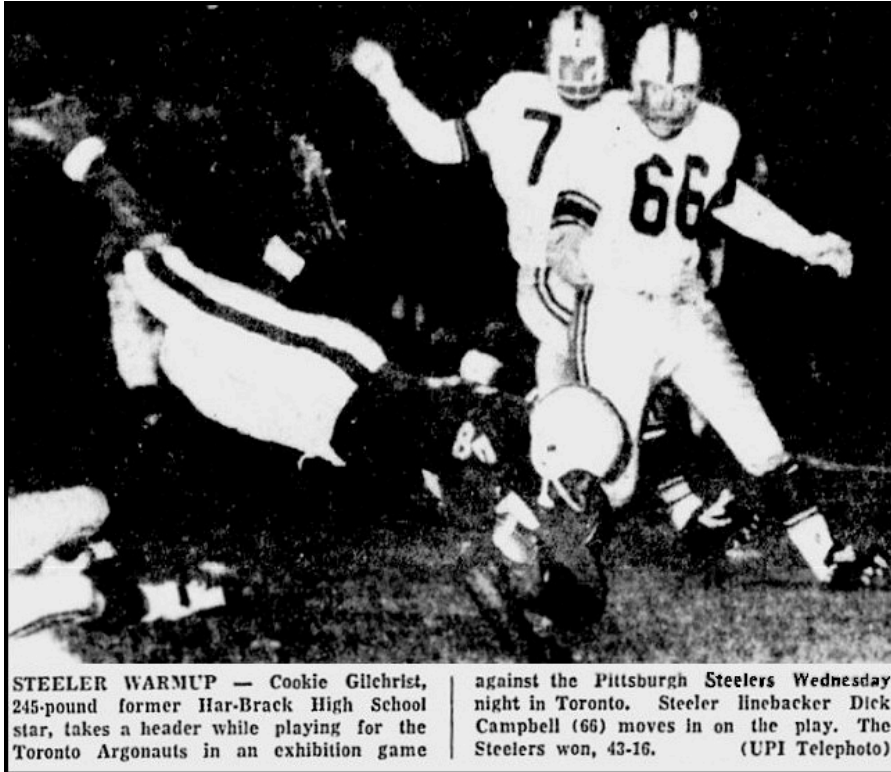

As coach Lou Agase explained later, it was about all "we had." The first two times Dave Mann managed to get his punts to Dick Shatto (Note: In the CFL a punt or "onside kick" may be recovered by any kicking team member, including the punter, who is behind the ball at the time it is kicked. If they recover the ball their team retains possession). But the Steelers got the next two with the final one "shanking" into Junior Wren's hands for a Pittsburgh touchdown. At this point, Rote went out of the game and so did most of the interest. Larry Krutko belted four yards and Bert Rechichar boomed a 41-yard field goal to make it 36-3 at the half.

It would be nice to think Argos were better in the second half. But the presence of Johnny Green, the quarterback who had brief fling with Scullers last season, at the Steeler throttle helped Argos somewhat. Cookie Gilchrist finally did boom over for a TD on a drive most capably directed by Tom Yewcic. The final Argo score came in the final minute of the game when John Wardlaw intercepted a Green pass and romped 107 yards for a TD.

The Steelers led 20-3 at the end of the first quarter, 36-3 at the half and 38-9 going into the final 15 minutes. Layne, who tossed one touchdown pass to Ken Carpenter and two to Buddy Dial, completed 15 of 24 passes for 327 yards. He had one interception.

The Steelers also scored when Dial got his second touchdown on a 61 yard pass-and-run play with Layne on the throwing end and Lowe Wren scored on a seven yard punt return.

The game was played under Canadian rules with each team using 12 men on offense and defense.

STEELER WARMUP — Cookie Gilchrist, 245-pound former Har-Brack High School star, takes a header while playing for the Toronto Argonauts in an exhibition game against the Pittsburgh Steelers Wednesday night in Toronto.
