

2013 Interprovincial Pro Football Conference Summary

Close Race Expected as IPFC Heads Into 2013 Season

Welcome to another season of wide-open Canadian football, with the 2013 Interprovincial Pro Football Conference and COLD SNAP Canadian Pro Football Game! It's been another busy off-season for the six IPFC clubs, with some key players changing uniforms. Here's a look-ahead for each club...

HALIFAX: Widely considered the IPFC's top team in 2012, Halifax should have no problem making another playoff run in 2013. QB Craig Kelly leads a pass-happy offense with a receiving corps that is clearly the league's best. WR Roy Owens and SB Ian Hamilton were already IPFC all-stars, but All-IPFC free-agent SB Jermaine Holt was picked up from Vancouver to add even more depth. Combine those three with emerging young WR Kirk McCord and solid SB Gord Porter as a fifth receiver, and you have an embarrassment of riches. The offensive line is led by returning vets T Laurence Patterson and G Jerry Simpson, and while as a group they're not particularly mobile, they do a decent job of keeping pass rushers out of Kelly's way. RB Cory Boyd will split time with rookie Ntwannu Nyamadi, if and when yards are needed on the ground. On defense, LB Dorian Summers and DE Clarence Cole put plenty of heat on enemy passers, and huge DT Larry Swiston plugs holes up front. The backfield was beefed up with free-agent signees DB Lamar Beck (Vancouver) and CB Dunta Green (Ottawa). They join CB Reggie Chapman to form a group that has shut-down potential. Longtime IPFC vet K/P Luca Lyon is back for another year, so the kicking game is solid. PROJECTION: 7-3.

LONDON: Last year's "project" QB Derrick Lane showed so much improvement, he was offered a huge new contract--by Saskatoon! That left London in the lurch again, and they've elected to keep the same offense in place, but with a different face behind centre. Enter U.S. college star J'Marcus Urban, who will be given a shot at directing the Canadian game. Urban shows much the same skill set as Lane: athletic, tough, un-polished but with good instincts, a strong arm and plenty of speed. He'll get help from a group of receivers led by IPFC vet Jabari Harper. Expect Urban to lean on a rushing attack that has the potential to be very productive, thanks to a line that, tackle-to-tackle, is the IPFC's best. G DeAngelo Fox returned to all-pro form in 2012 after sitting out 2011 with an injury, T Gene Hart is a potential IPFC hall-of-famer. RB Cedric Foster is fast and durable, and a track record of being among the league's rushing leaders, especially running behind this line. On the other side of the ball, huge DT Ricky Harvey is a player other teams try to avoid, and MLB Brad Carr is a real run-stuffer. DE Yuan Chan was signed as a free-agent to add some extra "oomph" to the pass rush, although he appeared to play with less intensity last year in Quebec. The secondary has a few dings in it from last year that London chose not to address--that could end up hurting the club down the stretch. Kicking is only adequate, with P/K Damon Hansen. PROJECTION: 6-4.

OTTAWA: The youth movement continues in Ottawa, with four 2013 draftees pencilled in as starters; two each on offence and defence. Rookie MLB Tyler Woodman gets a shot at manning the middle, and hot-shot CB Samael Digby takes over on one corner. LB Victor Jones and DT Andre Johnson add veteran leadership, and all-IPFC S Jerrod Gregory was a key free-agent signing. The rest of the crew of defenders is respectable. If they can make some stops, the Ottawa offence is good enough to keep the team competitive. Led by hometown hero QB Hugo Hale and quick, elusive RB Rodney Allen, Ottawa will pin its hopes on a young offensive line to open holes and fend off pass rushers. Last year's rookie prize G Brandon Van Zell didn't produce as expected, he's been moved to centre where he'll battle for the starting job with a new rookie, C Jordan Mahoney. Rookie G Jack Range is also projected as a starter, but there's a strong veteran presence from all-IPFC T Parker Pinchot to show the young guys the ropes. SB Terry Martin captains a respectable group of pass-catchers. Ottawa has the IPFC's top kicker, in accurate, dependable Adrian Anderson, and if the defense keeps things close, he could be the difference in whether or not this club makes the playoffs. PROJECTION: 4-6.

QUEBEC: Last year was a rebuilding year in Quebec, and they've cobbled together a couple of free-agent and rookie pickups in hopes of being more competitive in 2013. Gone is journeyman QB Randy Carlson, and taking his place behind centre is long-time Football America QB Serge Yarelian. Yarelian played fifteen years in the FA, the last two years backing up Greg Carter in Detroit and Kurt Render in New York, but felt he could still be a starter. So when the IPFC called, Yarelian jumped at the chance. At 37, he's not as mobile or durable as he once was, and it'll be up to the o-line to keep him from getting clobbered. Last year's free-agent acquisition C Taylor Yarbrough blossomed into one of the league's better pivot men, but the rest of the line is average at best. If Yarelian goes down, it'll be up to rookie QB Keith Van Pratt or unproven QB Matt Turenne--NOT a best-case scenario. Also added as a free-agent, legendary IPFC pass-catching and return star Midge Morris. Morris appears to have lost a step--he was let go after just one season in Vancouver--but he'll still be an inviting target for Yarelian, as will WRs Jerome Bell and Lonnie Peterson. Morris may get some return opportunities, although that was one of the few bright spots for Quebec in 2012, with DB/KR "Super Mario" Morgan. RB Darren Ward powers the running attack, capably. On defense, highly-regarded rookie LB Jovon Ridgely is being counted on to be a game-changer, both as a run-stopper and pass-rusher. DB Jumelle Duran was signed from London to add some needed stability to the backfield. Hard-charging S Cody Richardson and beefy DE LeRoi Gros are tough on enemy runners, albeit a step slow against the pass. Kicking duties fall to another rookie, Jordy Miano. PROJECTION: 4-6.

SASKATOON: The winds of change swept through the Canadian frontier during the off-season, as Saskatoon made the biggest splash in the free-agent pool by signing London QB Derrick Lane to a multi-year deal. Mobile, rangy and possessing a cannon arm, Lane showed great progress last year after being thrust into the starting job in London. The Saskatoon front office was impressed enough to make Lane its quarterback of the future, breaking ties with last year's passers. Incumbent QB Bruce Kennedy was waived, and veteran QB Archie Morrison announced his retirement. As if Lane wasn't enough of a threat running the ball himself, Saskatoon also boasts the IPFC's top running back in RB Wendell Gordon. With most of its available cap money directed toward Lane, there wasn't a lot left over to sign anyone else, rookies or free-agents. The offensive line gets help from journeyman C Wayne Elliot, who was a starter last year in Ottawa. WR Seth Nowak joins from Vancouver after posting decent numbers in 2012. QB Randy Breaux joins the club as Lane's backup, after several seasons bouncing from club-to-club in Football America. But clearly, this club is depending on the one-two punch of Lane and Gordon to get it done this year. Defensively, there's better balance. DB Toby Justice and LB Paul Black made successful transitions from different positions in 2012, and are expected to anchor the secondary. Pass-rush star LB John Jackson provides pressure from the edge, and LB Paul Mills and DT Jon Ikeda add heft to the line. If Lane and Gordon stay healthy and productive, this could again be a playoff club. PROJECTION: 5-5.

VANCOUVER: No club was hit harder by off-season free-agency than Vancouver. The key losses include two top receivers from 2012, SB Jermaine Holt and WR Seth Nowak, and two all-IPFC defenders: S Jerrod Gregory and DB Lamar Beck. Holt, Beck and starting DT Rayshaun Miles were all signed by Halifax, while Gregory was lured away by Ottawa. In addition, SB/KR Midge Morris was quietly released and quickly signed with Quebec. Considering all the departures, though, this club remains in surprisingly decent shape. Rookie S Eric Wenke will have to try to fill Gregory's slot, but he'll get plenty of assistance from CBs John Little and Dontel Curtis and DB Duane Lambert--all of them quality cover-men. SB Alex Bosch will take over for Holt at SB, while WR Joe Barnett moves up from spot duty in 2012 to take Nowak's starting position. QB Max Carter is back to direct the attack, and the league has learned to never count out a club led by Carter. Feisty, fiery, and super-competitive, Carter has a knack for making the big plays when the game is on the line. He's got a top-notch offensive line, once again spearheaded by all-pro G Vern Caldwell and C Glen Rosehauer. RB Jabari Shelton will again get the bulk of the ball-toting duties, and he also developed into one of Carter's favorite pass-catching targets last year. If there's an "Achilles Heel" on this club, it could be the defensive line. DTs Rogers Paquette and Curtis Parker were signed as free-agents, but neither is star-caliber. LB Matt Jayne drops down to DE for pass rushing duties--he's quick, but smallish. In a pass-oriented league like the IPFC, stopping the run isn't a priority, but in Vancouver's case it could prove to be a liability. PROJECTION: 4-6.

Vancouver	11-33	11-35	11-43	11-43	11-41	X	11-41

This table is designed to quickly simulate games between two teams with one dice roll determining the winner of each contest. This is useful, for instance, when playing a single-team replay, to keep season-in-progress standings for the entire league. To use the chart, locate the HOME team, and then cross-reference its opponent. The number indicated represents the home team's "win range" for that game. Roll both dice; if the dice roll is within the home team's "win range," it wins the game. EXAMPLE: Quebec hosts Ottawa, with a "win range" of 11-43. A roll less than 43 gives Quebec a home win. A roll higher than 43 gives Ottawa a road win. NOTE that if your roll exactly matches the last number of the "win range" (in this case, 43), the game goes to overtime. Roll again on the home team's "OT" column. A roll within the "win range" results in an overtime win for the home team (in this case 11-41). If the OT dice roll exactly matches the last number of the OT win range, then the game ends in a tie.
