

2014 JWBL Season Summary

Unlike last season, which was built around a Grand Prix-style series of Tiara Cup tournaments, this season was more about building more local identities to the teams through the Victoria Series paradigm. Teams would typically play 2 games a week, with the East and West divisions alternating weeks. There was only ever one game going on at any one time. The first half of the season was 14 games for each team (10 Victoria Series and 4 Tiara Cup games), the second half was 18 games per team (14 and 4 Victoria Series and Tiara Cup games respectively).

The 4 teams were broken into 2 divisions: The West and South teams were in the Western Division, the East and North teams were in the Eastern Division. The majority of the season was based around intra-divisional Victoria Series games, with only 4 Tiara Cup tournaments, creating a wildly unbalanced schedule. Both divisions were broken into halves, and a single game playoff held if the winner of the first half of the season was different from the second half winner. Ties in either half of the season are broken by run differential and then by total runs. Wasn't clear what would have happened if they were still tied after this. The winners of the 2 divisions played each other in a Best of Three Queen Series final.

All games are regularly scheduled for 7 innings. Victoria Series games can go up to 9 innings if necessary, if still tied after 9; game is called a tie. Tiara Cup games (except for the final) end after 7 no matter the score. Tiara Cup finals are played to a maximum of 9 innings. In the semi-finals, a lottery is held in tie games to determine who advances, but the game counts as a tie in the standings.

Other Notes:

- The October 12th date for the West Division playoff is a guess. It wasn't necessary, and frankly was quite clear fairly early, that it wasn't going to be necessary so it was never officially scheduled
- The Queen Series ended in 2 games, but November 16th was the officially scheduled date of Game 3 of the series.
- In case you are curious, West won both halves of the season in the Western Division quite easily. East won the 1st half, and North won the 2nd half in the East Division, East won the playoff game.
- West defeated East 2-0 in the Queen Series final, winning Game 1 6-0 and Game 2 8-7 coming from 6-2 down after the 2nd inning.
- Last season's pitcher of the year, Honami Ohta, was an odd situation. Having announced that she wasn't coming back right after the 2013 season ended, she was shockingly put back on the East roster the day before the season started. East chose not to use her, and indeed, left her completely off the roster for some early season games. Coupled with the obvious struggles of the South team early in the season, led to the trade mentioned below.
- May 20th saw the only trade of the season, with the aforementioned Honami Ohta along with Yasuka Ohzawa going from East to South in exchange for Nami Okumura. The players were available for their new teams immediately.

- The 2014 Women’s Baseball World Cup took place in Japan from September 1st-September 7th. It was won by Japan, who was only ever really challenged by the US.
- This matters here as West players Minami Yano, Akane Nakamura and Iori Miura were on the team, and were thus unavailable for the September 2nd and 3rd Victoria Series games. There were no players from South that made the national team
- In total, there were 7 players from the JWBL that made the Japan roster. The other 4 were Yuki Kawabata, Risa Nakashima and Miki Atsugase from East, and Ayami Sato from North (who shut the US out in the Gold Medal Game and won tournament MVP)
- Those who have played with the 2013 set, you’ll notice that there was quite a bit of turnover in the league from last season to this season. A few of the players that retired took coaching positions in the league. Those included:
 - Maya Kawaho – 2013 East player, 2014 East Manager
 - Chie Niihara – 2013 South player, 2014 West Coach
 - Yu Kawamoto – 2013 East player, 2014 North Manager
